CAPTAIN OF ALASKA GOES DOWN WITH HIS VESSEL

"Writes" Another Epic of Heroism in the Annals of the Pacific Ocean

(By International News Service)

EUREKA Calif., Aug. 8.—Again has the rock-studded, reef-strewn and fog-clouded coast of Northern California taken heavy toll of life.

And again has the epic of sea heroism been written in the annals of the Pacific.

Today, the horrors of Saturday night, when the steamship Alaska hit Blunt's Reef, shivered as if in mortal agony, and then plunged beneath the cold waters of the North Pacific, were memories, recounted with varying degrees of emotion, from the lips of the 166 survivors.

The Humboldt county coast has added to her already long list of death toll, a fresh harvest of possibly forty lives. Written brightest in the high lights of the disaster are the names of three:

Captain Harry Hobbey, of the Alaska.

Mrs. Grace Campbell, stewardess of the same ship.

Captain S. Snoddy, of the rescue ship, Anyox.

Passengers and crew are awesomely repeating today the megaphoned words of Captain Hobbey, as he mounted the Alaska's bridge, a few seconds after the ship had struck, to direct the work of clearing the sinking ship of its human freight:

"I am going down with this ship, but if you do what I tell you, nobody will go down but myself," he shouted.

He was as good as his word, and went down with his ship. To his cool direction, undoubtedly, was due the partially successful clearing of the ship.

COURAGEOUS STEWARDESS

Not less courageous was the conduct of Stewardess Grace Campbell. The women and children were guided, and in some instances, carried, to the ship's boats by her. Tiny children, distracted women and those infirm with age, owe to her supervision and personal efforts their safety.

"She worked as if inspired," said a mother today.

And the third hero shares his distinction with his crew. Himself in danger from the dense fog in which the Alaska went to her fate, and with a heavy tow endangering the movements of his ship, Captain Snoddy, of the Anyox, performed a miracle of the sea in reaching the scene of the wreck and in taking from the oil and wreckage strewn waters 166 souls. Every boat and raft that had been launched from the Alaska was picked up, and in addition, men and women struggling in the water were hauled to safety.

"Credit due our crew for handling all survivors without a mishap," is the terse and modest manner in which Captain Snoddy tells of this night of heroism.

SEARCHING FOR VICTIMS

Today the search for the bodies of those who lost their lives, progressed apace. Along the rocky shores of Cape Mendocino, forty miles south of here, hundreds watched for the sea to give up its dead. Off Blunt's Reef, five miles out from shore, a half dozen small craft scoured the surface of the ocean for bodies, directed by the former gunboat Vicksburg, now in the coast geodetic survey service.

RAVAGE FAMINE DISTRICT

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Brigands are ravaging the famine district along the Volga valley. The brigands have burned all the timber and farmsteads on 25,000 acres of land in the Ural district.

BUTTERFLIES BATTLE

WASHINGTON.—Daily battles between humming-birds and butterflies are occurring in the White House grounds, with the radiant blossoms of an historic acacia tree as the spoils of war.

The humming-birds are always vanquished in the fights, the butterflies putting them to flight as they hover over the blossoms, but usually not without some spectacular resistance. Larger birds seem to have no terrors for the humming species, the courageous little creatures always resisting valiantly in defense of their nests around the blooming boughs, but the butterfly is a terrifying enemy.

ALASKA'S DEAD

(By International News Service)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 8.—Officials of the San Francisco and Portland steamship company declared today that it might be several days before they were able to determine the exact number that lost their lives when the Alaska went down.

Seventeen are known dead. That number of bodies has reached Eureka.

Estimates on the missing run from 23 to 31. So far the company has been unable to ascertain the exact number on board, figures varying from 208 to 221.

Of the survivors 23 passengrs and eight of the crew were injured severely enough for hospital treatment, according to word from Eureka.

BERTHA WINKLER IS SERIOUSLY HURT BY AUTOIST

Miss Bertha Winkler, 330 Pioneer drive, was struck by an automobile at Brand boulevard and Broadway at 8:10 o'clock this morning. Following an examination at the Glendale sanitarium, it was announced that Miss Winkler had suffered a concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull.

The car which struck Miss Winkler was driving east on Broadway. A Dodge car was going in the same direction, so that she did not see the Ford, driven by F. N. Anesa, of 1306 East Broadway, which was coming up a short distance bhind. Mr. Aness says he did not see Miss Winkler until his machine was within five feet of her, when it was too late to turn out.

Witnesses of the accident claim that when she saw the car bearing down upon her, Miss Winkler tried to seize the radiator. She was knocked to the street and the car partly passed over her body before it could be stopped.

LOCAL C. OF C. WILL VISIT VERDUGO

Development of the Verdugo Woodlands, into one of the most ideal homesites, will be reviewed tomorrow at noon by the Chamber of Commerce, at the invitation of the Newport Company, which has spent thousands of dollars in the subdivision.

"This subdivision is one of the most beautiful creations I have seen," said James M. Rhoades, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, "and the sight of the beautiful way the plans have been carried out, would repay a visit.

"It is noticeable that the company is bringing in many hundreds of new people and that they are building homes rapidly and selling lots to a class of people that it would repay the Glendale merchants to meet. I hope there will be a full delegation to make the visit. The company has prepared a good luncheon, so that we can leave Glendale at ten minutes to twelve and return at 1:15."

GLENDALE MAN IS ON INQUIRY BOARD

Lieut. Normal C. Hayhurst, of the Glendale National Guard company, received a telegram this morning, notifying him of his appointment as recorder of the court of inquiry recently named by J. J. Boree, adjutant general.

TRAFFIC VIOLATORS MEET JUDGE LOWE AND PAY FINES

Sunday Was a Sad Day for Auto Drivers in Glendale—The Grist

Yesterday was a sad day for traffic violators in Glendale. The officers were kept more than busy, and as a result there was a scramble to "get soaked first" in Judge Lowe's court this morning. Judge Lowe let the offenders understand thoroughly that no guilty person appearing in his court draws a "blank." The following were counted among the speeders:

H. C. Brum, 114 North Orange, was arrested for traveling 31 miles an hour on Central avenue, where there is a 20-mile limit. His fine of $10 was paid.

Oris D. Barrows, 204 North Mill street, Santa Paula, was caught going 31 miles an hour along this same stretch. He forfeited his bail, amounting to $10.

Eugene E. Wehall, 1343 East Forty-second street, Los Angeles, was arrested on the San Fernando Road for traveling 30 miles an hour in a 20-mile section. Also, he had no chauffeur's license. He paid a fine of $10.

There were three taken in for permitting their cars to stand in the "no parking" zone. They were as follows:

Mrs. C. E. Witham, 822 East Chestnut, Glendale, whose car was tagged on East Broadway, paid a $2 fine.

K. Koffman, 140 Fairmont avenue, Eagle Rock, was arrested for a like offense on East Broadway and paid a $2 fine.

Peter Hanson, 605 Kerchoff street, Los Angeles, was arrested for parking his machine too near a fire plug. He paid a $2 fine and went away smiling.

C. H. Woolley also was arrested for parking his machine too near a fire plug. The arrest was made on North Brand. Fined $2.

George McLaughlin, 512 West Broadway, Los Angeles, was "pinched" last night on North Brand, for leaving the engine of his car running. Fined $2.

A. M. Otis, 503 Higgins building, Los Angeles, was arrested for violation of the "no parking" section of the traffic ordinance. Fined $2.

J. R. Alexandra, 1241 West Ninth street, Los Angeles, was fined $3 for turning between intersections on Brand boulevard.

V. Phillapy, 3453 Percy street, Los Angeles, was fined $3 for a like offense. He was arrested on South Brand boulevard.

Marvin A. Bunting, 1325 North Brand, was arrested for driving with his muffler open. This case was dismissed.

MRS. T. A. WRIGHT RETURNS

Mrs. T. A. Wright, 141 North Louise street, and her little son, have just returned from a sad journey. They were called to Toledo by the fatal illness of Mrs. Wright's aged mother, Mrs. Elmira Gasser, who lived five days after they reached her bedside. Mrs. Gasser made her home in Glendale for five years and had a large circle of friends here.

WIRELESS FOR COPS

Chicago.—The coat lapel of every Chicago policeman soon may harbor an individual wireless receiving station that will permit him to receive, anywhere on his beat, urgent alarms from headquarters, if the plan of William G. Kieth, City Commissioner of Gas and Electricity, works out.

Mr. Kieth has just completed the installation on the top of the city hall, for use by the police and fire departments, of a big wireless station, which he hopes to develop to the point of putting a receiving apparatus upon the coat lapel of every policeman in the city.

An officer may be strolling placidly along his beat, perhaps assisting a pretty maid in the locomotion of a baby buggy, when a buzzing at his lapel will cause him to drop the handle of the buggy—or the hand of the maid—and cock an attentive ear to the aforesaid lapel.

"Officer 13.....Officer 13 ..... Officer 13," the "lapel" station will say. "Robbery reported at No. 2323 Blank street."

And off he will speed, leaving a displeased maid and surprising, perhaps, an equally displeased burglar.

American Envoy Is Pleasing to Japan

(By International News Service)

TOKIO, Aug. 8.—The appointment of Charles Beecher Warren as ambassador to Japan has been received with reserved pleasure here thus far. While both the American community and the Japanese official circles are glad that the question of who will be the American envoy to Tokio has at last been settled it is impossible for most of the leaders in both divisions of those interested to comment very profusely on the new appointee.

To a wide circle of friends in Tokio the last ambassador, Mr. Morris, was a most satisfactory representative of the United States. He was active in every line of Americanism here; he was a staunch supporter of the American School, was active in the American Association and was in other ways identified with the interests of all Americans in the Far East. Thus such members of the American community as Mr. Robert F. Moss, president of the American Association, and other officers of this organization, are hoping that Mr. Warren will prove as interested in such affairs as was Mr. Morris. "Advance reports on the new ambassador to Japan," said Mr. Moss the day after the news had been received, "indicate that Tokio may expect a first-rate ambassador at the embassy soon. Most of the Americans I have talked to have expressed themselves as well pleased with the appointment."

KANEKO PLEASED

Viscount Kentaro Kaneko, president of the America-Japan Society, a meinber of the privy council, is particularly pleased with the appointment. The reports reaching Tokio for a few weeks previous to the appointment indicated that President Harding might possibly select a man who was definitely against Japan, and it was, therefore, a relief when Warren's name reached the ears of some of the leading Japanese. Viscount Kaneko was in charge of Japan's interests at the time of the Behring sea fisheries dispute, and for that reason he was able to learn something of Ambassador Warren, who at that time was a member of the joint high commission.

PRESS NEVER HEARD OF HIM

"As vice-minister of agriculture at that time I was connected also with the Behring sea fisheries settlement, and the fairness with which this case was handled was pleasing to Japan," said Viscount Kaneko, when seen by a representative of the International News Service. "My impression is that Mr. Warren accomplished much as a member of the joint high commission at that time. I believe Japan generally will regard him as the right sort of a man for the place."

The Chugai Shogyo, a commercial paper, is the only one thus far to comment on the new ambassador. This is doubtless due to the fact that the editors of most of the newspapers have never heard of Mr. Warren and that they are right now awaiting advices from America regarding the new appointee. The Chugai says:

NEWSPAPERS APPROVE

"The delay in the selection of an ambassador to Japan is enough to point to the fact that the American government has taken considerable pains regarding it. In view of the fact that many important questions are pending between Japan and America. Japan has naturally watched with great interest for the name of the new appointee. Mr. Charles Beecher Warren, the new appointee, is a first-class man among the the Republicans and, though with little diplomatic experience, he is known to have sufficient knowledge of diplomatic affairs.

"We do not, of course, know as yet what opinions he entertains regarding Japanese-American problems, but we believe that he is neither bigoted nor biased, but that he is open-minded and that his appointment will make a great contribution to the friendship of Japan and America."

PLEASING NEWS FOR USERS OF PHONES IN GLENDALE

Two more operators wil be added to the switchboard of the telephone company, it was announced today, by Fred Deal, manager of the Glendale Exchange. Commentng upon the growth of the service in Glendale, Mr. Deal said:

"Of course with Glendale growing the way it has," he said, "it would be impossible for us to keep up to demands. We are doing the best we can. We have five girls working on the switchboard now. Two more will be added.

"The 'peak load' of the Glendale service comes, strange to say, at night, after six o'clock. Everyone wants to talk to someone else it would seem. Then the early hour of the day, between eight and nine o'clock is another busy hour. After those rush hours are over, the operators have nothing to do but work as fast as possible during their shift.

"This plant is as well equipped as any plant on the coast for a city of this size. Even if the whole of the electric service goes out, we could maintain service, for we have a gasoline auxiliary plant all equipped and ready to start as soon as anything happens to shut off the city service."

LLOYD GEORGE NOT COMING

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Premier Lloyd George will not attend in person the Far East and disarmament conference in Washington next November. The British premier made a statement to that effect here today.

EAGLE ROCK YOUTHS INJURED BY AUTO WHILE WALKING

Marshall Ball, 360 North Ellenwood avenue, Eagle Rock, suffered a broken leg, and George Dallman, 208 Rowan avenue, Eagle Rock, was cut about the face, at 10 o'clock last night, as a result of being struck by an automobile driven by A. B. Clayton of 115 North Ellis avenue, Eagle Rock. The accident happened on Colorado street, between Adams street and Verdugo road.

Mr. Clayton claims that as he was driving east, another car was coming west along the same street. The headlights of the approaching car were so blinding that Mr. Clayton could not see the two boys, who were walking along the right side of the road.

Mr. Clayton stopped, picked up the boys and drove them to the Glendale sanitarium, where their injuries were attended to. Following treatment, Dallman was removed to his home, while Ball is still at the sanitarium.

MRS. Z. O. HART IS CALLED TO BEYOND

Mrs. Pauline M. Hart, wife of Zellner O. Hart, died of pneumonia this morning at 7:45 o'clock, at their home, 1315 South Glendale avenue. She leaves a little daughter, Margaret, and a brother in Arizona, who is now en route to Glendale. No funeral arrangements have been made as yet. Mr. Hart is a teller in the Security Trust and Savings bank, of Los Angeles.

NEW SAVINGS BANK WILL RECEIVE ITS STATE CHARTER

Owned by Stockholders of First National—Will Have a Capital of $50,000

Jonathan S. Dodge, lately appointed superintendent of banks by Governor Stephens, was a recent visitor in Glendale to officially observe the financial growth of the city, and to decide on the advantage and necessity of another savings bank in this city.

The visit of Superintendent Dodge was to pass on an application presented to the banking department by R. F. Kitterman, C. C. Cooper, Geo. T. Paine, E. L. Osborne, H. S. Webb and E. U. Emery, for a license to establish a savings bany to handle savings only, with a capital of $50,000, and to be located in the room at 104 East Broadway near the present banking room of the First National bank. It is understood that the new bank will be owned by stockholders of the First National bank, all of whom are local residents, and will take over the safety deposit business and savings accounts now handled by the First National.

Savings banks are permitted to loan money on buildings and city real estate for periods of time longer than one year, and will permit the use of savings deposits for local improvements.

Superintendent of Banks Dodge stated:

"It seems to me that Glendale is growing faster than any city in the United States, and certainly there is a full demand here for loans and investments. No doubt there are many people who live in Glendale who are not now patronizing the local banks, and probably many who are not depositors in any bank at all.

"Surely there is room for another savings bank, and after viewing the situation and conferring with the business men, I shall grant a permit for the First Savings bank to open for business."

LEGION MEMBERS WORK ON STADIUM

Work by husky ex-service men on the staduim being erected in Hollywood, by the American Legion post of that city, is being rushed, and the huge structure will be ready in time for the first ring show, Friday night next. The advance seat sale indicates that a record crowd will attend.

All day yesterday, from dawn till dark, a regiment of Legion boys toiled on the lot, making the arena ready for the glove carnival. There is much to be done, and the former fighters are not slow in their efforts. It is for a worthy cause, the proceeds to be used in caring for needy veterans.

A tiptop card is being arranged by Frank Crowley, who returned from San Francisco with two headliners and a couple of other snappy events, for the eight-bout program, which will be witnessed by over 8000 persons on August 12.

MISS E. VANDEGRIFT ACCIDENT VICTIM

Miss E. Vandegrift was injured Sunday afternoon when the machine in which she was riding ran over the edge of a bridge on the highway between La Crescenta and La Canada. The car was badly damaged. The other members of the party, including a young woman whose name could not be ascertained by the police; G. J. Farries, of La Crescenta, and Bert Spencer, of Sunland, suffered only minor injuries.

Following the accident, Miss Vandegrift was hurried to the Glendale sanitarium, where her injuries, consisting of lacerations to her face, were attended to. Her condition is such as to make it unwise to remove her from the hospital for a day or two.

CURE FOR DIVORCE

GENEVA.—All Swiss girls will be compelled to take a one-year course in housework and cooking if a measure about to be introduced in the Swiss Parliament is passed. Advocates of the measure say they can produce statistics to show that girls who have taken domestic science courses marry more readily and are less apt to appear in the divorce courst than their idle sisters.

LUDENDORFF RULED KAISER, ASSERTS NOWAK'S BOOK

GEN. VON LUDENDORFF.

(By International News Service)

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—That General Ludendorff was the actual war lord and master of Germany and gave the Kaiser orders and humiliated him before his own generals, is the startling disclosure made by Karl Nowak in his new historical work, "The Fall of the Central Powers." It is no secret in court and higher army circles that Nowak's book was written with the collaboration of several important generals and statesmen who didn't wish to publish the revelations under their own names because they feared being accused of bad faith.

Before the tide of war had turned in January, 1918, General Ludendorff was determined that Germany should annex a strip of Russia from the Finnish sea to the Austrian border including Lettland Esthonia and Lithuania, and about one and three-quarter millions of the present population of Poland. Ludendorff used the same arguments which Clemenceau produced against Lloyd George and Wilson when he sought the annexation of the Rhineland to France—military necessity and the prevention of future wars.

WANTED POLAND

General Max Hoffman Germany's general staff authority on Russia, fought the annexation of more Poles, a non-assimilable people, who would become a cancer in the Fatherland, he contended. The secretary of foreign affairs Dr. von Kuehlmann was also opposed to the annexation. Under no circumstances did he wish any more Poles for Germany, and suggested joining the Russian Poles to Austria as a solution which would placate the chauvinists.

To check Lndendorff's annexation program, General Hoffman and von Kuehlmann took the matter up with the Kaiser and quickly persuaded Wilhelm II. that an increase of Polish population would be a danger to the internal security of Germany. The Kaiser with his two authorities on Russia faced von Hindenburg and Ludendorff at the crown council meeting in the Bellevue palace, the evening of January 2, 1918, when the terms of the Brest-Litovsk treaty were to be discussed.

"Gentlemen you will find drawn on this map the future boundary between Prussia and Poland, which I, as supreme political leader and supreme military commander, consider correct," the Kaiser announced, according to Nowak. "I base this on the judgment of a prominent authority, General Hoffman here."

JEALOUSY RIFE

"The Kaiser showed them a map which had been drawn by General Hoffman," continues Nowak, "but suddenly there was a scene. For a few minutes General Ludendorff entirely lost his composure, his military bearing and tone. He grumbled and shrieked at the Kaiser. He seemed to have lost all control of his nerves. The Kaiser could not receive any general over Ludendorff's head. The Kaiser's boundary could not be final. It must be reconsidered.

"General Field Marshal von Hindenburg also grumbled: 'We must study the matter well.'"

The Kaiser gave in. He said: "Then I await a new explanation—."Nowak writes: "The Kaiser proposed to Ludendorff that he himself should go to Brest-Litovsk to study the tangled problem on the spot. But the general deemed it best to refuse gruffly. The crown council, which had been sitting through the drama of the supreme war lords in painful silence, separated."

Nowak relates the epilogue of this scene: "General Ludendorff demanded General Hoffman's resignation because Hoffman, without first securing Ludendorff's permission, had, at the order of the Kaiser, held a dissertation on Poland for his benefit. General Ludendorff wished General Hoffman to be given the command of a division at the front. Although the Kaiser's order guaranteed the security of Hoffman's post, General Ludendorff broke off all direct connections with General Hoffman.

The Sheridan is a joy to all motorists, for it has an unusually powerful engine for a car of its size. It is a car that is most easily operated, and very economical on gas and oil. And, after all, it is not the first cost of a car, which in this case is amazingly reasonable, but the cost of up-keep, which on so many cars is exorbitant, that really should be considered. Another thing—when you buy your Sheridan from the Club Garage at 107 E. Colorado St., you are absolutely protected, for the Club Garage stands for—"Service promises fulfilled!"

"GARDEN OF EDEN" TOPIC OF LECTURE BY DR. RILEY

(Communication)

Dr. F. L. Riley delivered a lecture at the Masonic Temple Sunday morning, using as his subject "The Garden of Eden."

The lecturer asserted that the Bible is the most wonderful book in the world, is spite of the fact that it is not understood by the average man, for the simple reason that a "key" is necessary to unlock the beautiful thoughts contained in this sacred book.

The story of the Garden of Eden is an allegory. The Bible, so far as the allegories are concerned, is a "heiroglyph of the soul."

When the Mohammedans fed to the flames over 800,000 volumes of the world's most ancient and valuable literature for the purpose of heating the public baths, the "key" to the allegories for the time was lost.

Five thousand years before our Bible appeared, the story was told in Sanscrit, in the ancient Indian Bible, that Adam and Eve lived on the island of Salon, between the Euphrates and Tigris rivers.

In support of the fact that chronology of the Bible cannot be correctly interpreted literally, many scientific facts were cited, among which were that facts that no less a notable than the late ex-President Roosevelt unearthed a human skull, which is now on exhibition in New York, which is over 500,000 years old; that the entire state of California has been covered at three distinct times by the sea.

In referring to Adam, showing that Ada is the animal nature, passion, hatred and evil thoughts; that Eve is just the opposite—love, etc.; that woman, as incorrectly interpreted, was not the cause of the fall of man, the cause of all the sin and trouble which followed, but just the reverse.

The old man, Adam, must be put to sleep before Eve can be taken from his side: the spiritual awakens when the animal is mastered. We must eat the fruit from the tree of life and not from the tree of good and evil. The belief in two powers, good and evil, must be overcome. There is but one power—Good, God—and to the extent that man realizes that fact will he be free from the power of the serpent (evil and ignorance).

The subject of Dr. Riley's lecture for next Sunday morning will be: "Did the Sun Stand Still?" The lecturer suggested that his hearers whose Bibles were dusty, blow the dust off, turn to the book of Joshua, tenth chapter, read carefully upon the subject and form an opinion on the situation.

VETERANS OF WAR TO BE CARED FOR

The disabled veterans of the late war are at last coming into their own. Nearly three years have passed since the signing of the armistice. After interminable delays, the government is beginning to display some degree of the same efficiency in caring for the disabled veterans as it employed in '17 and '18, when these same men, in the prime of life and vigorous manhood, were sorely needed on the "western front."

The director of the consolidated war risk bureau and public health service, Col. C. R. Forbes, himself a veteran, has inaugurated a nation-wide "clean-up campaign" for the benefit of the disabled veterans, ex-army nurses, and their dependents.

Cooperating with federal agencies, all volunteer veteran relief agencies will assist in making a complete canvass of the district for the purpose of locating and assisting every disabled veteran and dependents, in a speedy adjustment of their claims.

The following organizations will participate: the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, Disabled Veterans of the World War, Military Order of the World War, Red Cross, Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army, Y. M. C. A., and the Jewish Welfare Board.

DAN CAMPBELL, JR., RETURNING HOME

Dan Campbell, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Campbell of Kenneth road, is now on the way home from a tour of the east. As a member of the student reserve at the California School of Technology, at Pasadena, he was sent by the government to Camp Humphreys in Virginia, for six weeks' training in bridge building, pontoon making, marksmanship, etc. After completing the training, he spent three days in Washington, a week in New York, a day each at Niagara Falls and Detroit, three days in Chicago, and from there expected to go to St. Paul to take the Great Northern or the Northern Pacific for the Pacific coast.

Hollis Moyse, son of Principal Geo. U. Moyse of Glendale high school, was also sent to Camp Humphreys.

FOUND HIS GARAGE LOCKED

When M. H. Stanley, a real estate salesman residing at 738 South Maryland avenue, tried to open his garage door Sunday, preparatory to taking out his car, he found it locked and the key gone. Some of the brass on a motorcycle, which was also in the garage, had been stripped away, but no other damage done.

"GILDED LILY" AT PALACE GRAND

The brilliant new Paramount picture, "The Gilded Lily," starring Mae Murray, will be featured again today at the Palace Grand Theater. The photoplay was produced by Robert Z Leonard, and is the first Mr. Leonard has made with Miss Murray, his wife, under a new contract with Paramount.

"The Gilded Lady" is reminiscent of the George Fitzmaurice production of "On With the Dance," in which Miss Murray achieved a notable success last year. The bewitching blonde star is seen as Lillian Drake, a typical Salamander—one of those women who can take from men and give nothing in return—but though she is all laughter and rouge and silk on the exterior, her one longing is to quit her butterfly life and become a wife.

She has many admirers, among whom are Creighton Howard, a typical Broadway man-about-town, and Frank Thompson, a country boy. Frank asks her to marry him and she consents, and, in order to be better fitted to bear his name, she quits dancing and leads a quiet life. Frank is not pleased, because he loved her frivolities, and the final twist is more surprising.

Creighton Howard is played by Lowen Sherman, and Jason Robards plays Frank Montgomery. A big cabaret scene, in which Miss Murray executes several of her fascinating dances, is one of the most striking scenes.

Today's program is rounded off with a two-reel Fox Sunshine comedy called "His Unlucky Job." The picture brings a number of jazz laugh artists into action sufficient to provoke laughter to the most mirthless soul.

MERCHANTS' SHOW IS OPEN TO ALL

The Retail Merchants' Exposition is for Glendale merchants, and every merchant has a right to exhibit goods in the big tent, said Secretary Rhoades of the Chamber of Commerce today, when it was reported that an impression had been created that only those invited would be admitted.

"While we have not organized the show," he said, "and it is possible that some merchants have not been called upon by the organizers, because of their lack of familiarity with all the merchants and stores, it is understood that any merchant who cares to enter, will be afforded space, whether he has been called upon or not. All that is necessary is to come to the Chamber of Commerce offices, or telephone for space."

Self-Evident

A small boy was scrubbing the front porch of his house the other day when a lady called.

"Is your mother in?" she inquired.

"Do you think I would be scrubbing the porch is she wasn't?" was the curt reply.

Poverty of wealth is serious, but poverty of ideas is fatal.

FOND MEMORIES

"Oh, it grieves me very deeply," said a swelt'ring baseball fan,
"When I think of how I used to love to sit here in the stand,
In the good old days of freedom when for just a single bill
You could buy a baseball ducat and could eat and drink your fill.

Those were happy days, believe me, when a schooner cost a jit,
When a frankfurter and peanuts stood you ten red on the mitt,
When the best seat in the grandstand could be had for fifty cents,
And you got a hundred sou's worth for each dollar that you spent.

Gone, those days, but not forgotten; sunk 'neath reformation's wave;
Gone, while blue law preachers chuckle, to a most untimely grave.
Gone? Ah, yes, but listen, pardner, though the pill was hard to take,
No one ever can deprive me of the mem'ries in their wake."

"POLLYANNA" AT THE GLENDALE

Critics everywhere assert that "Pollyanna" is one of the greatest picture plays ever filmed. The reason for this is that the philosophy upon which the story is based constituted a theme which, at the present time, has an unusually wide appeal.

This production, in which Mary Pickford appears, brought large crowds to the Glendale Theatre yesterday. It will be featured there again today.

This picture play differs from any of Mary's recent productions in that she portrays a little girl throughout the entire picture.

There is nothing more convincing than Miss Pickford's characterization in this photoplay. She does not merely act the part of a little girl; she IS a little girl. Her work in "Pollyanna" indicates that she has devoted unlimited time to the study of children, for there is no small characteristic which has escaped her.

As Pollyanna Whittier, Mary Pickford quickly wins her way to the hearts of those who watch the play, and succeeds in holding their deepest sympathy until the very last flicker in the final fade-out.

There is a depth of feeling in this picture that has never been shown in any other production. Miss Pickford puts all the delicate shading into her work that only a great artist is capable of. She often carries her audience to a tear and then suddenly snaps the tension by a bit of quaint, laugh-provoking comedy.

The pranks played by Pollyanna furnish unending fun. Those with whom she comes in contact think it strange that this little girl is able to be glad, no matter what happens. Her unusual philosophy wins many friends, and in the end, after she has been badly hurt in an accident, those who had held out persistently against her teachings, and who needed the leaven of her philosophy the most, saw the folly of their ways and the "glad game" became a part of their lives.

On the same bill with "Pollyanna" will be shown "Roaring Lions on Parade," a Fox comedy feature.

BRITISH PREMIER AVERTS TROUBLE

(By International News Service)

LOLNDON, Aug. 8.— Threatened break-off in the Irish peace negotiations and renewal of warfare in Ireland, was averted today by Premier Lloyd George. The premier sent orders from Paris to release immediately John McKeown, a leader of the Irish Republican army and a member of Dail Eireann (Sinn Fein parliament). When the British announced they would release the imprisoned members of Dail Eireann. McKeown was the only exception. The British authorities maintained he should not be liberated because of the serious charge of murder that had been lodged against him.

DOUGHBOY STATUE TO BE SOLD HERE

Typifying "The Spirit of the American Doughboy," a little bronze statue, which will be on sale in Glendale in a few weeks, will return 5 per cent of its retail price to the sick-relief fund of the local post of the American Legion. An illustration of the original statue, from which the smaller figures are modelled, appeared in the Daily Press of last Saturday.

E. M. Visquesney, of Americus, Ga., who is the designer and sculptor of "The Spirit of the American Doughboy," aimed primarily at realism in his work. There are none of the flaws in the equipment or bearing of his bronze soldier which so often appear in the work of an artist less familiar with the characteristics of the real doughboy, and which loom up so obviously to the ex-soldier.

It is said that more than fifty subjects were reviewed by Mr. Visquesney before he felt satisfied that he had the right one after whom he might model the statue that would be a universal representation of the American soldier.

The sale of the bronze model, which is to be nine inches in height, has been authorized by the local Legion post. The 5 per cent turnover, which is made to the post, will be used to aid disabled soldiers requiring additional support.

Albert G. Wheelon and Lawrence Duryee will take orders for the statue in Glendale. Both are Glendale men and members of the American Legion.

Alfalfa acreage in California for 1920 has been placed at 954,000 acres by H. M. Butterfield, supervisor of agricultural correspondence instruction at the University of California. This is an increase of 97 per cent over the figures given in the 1909 census. Over two-thirds of the state's acreage is to be found in Tulare, Merced, Imperial, Kern, Stanislaus, Siskiyou, San Joaquin, Yolo and Inyo counties. Tulare county alone possesses one-tenth of the total acreage.

Reduction export rates on dried and canned goods, beans, etc., from California to New York or Gulf Ports for European markets becomes effective August 15. Green fruit shipment east by rail doubles this year and big increase of shipments in past thirty days noted by boat through Canal to England and Europe. To July 14, 665 cars cherries; 285 cars apricots; 117 cars peaches; 2,006 cars plums; 302 cars pears and 1¼ cars mixed fruits have left for eastern markets from north of Tehachapi. This makes a total of 3,377 cars as against 3,052 cars for the same period last year."

Red Pages of History Cause Wars, Says Irwin

In his gripping book "The Next War," Will Irwin declares:

"Two great tasks lie before humanity in the rest of the twentieth century. One is to put under control of true morals and of democracy the great power of human production which came in the nineteenth century. The other is to check, to limit, and finally to eliminate the institution for war."

It is a fact that for centuries we have been taught to think in terms of war. Even the histories of the nations are the recitals of their wars. And so, it is not surprising that today we consider the future, not in the light of great peace time achievements, but from the standpoint of war.

Even though peace-makers at Paris, when drafting the Versailles treaty, quite carefully refrained from emphasizing the possibility of war and people at home surcharged with the thought of war. Everyone was sick of it, weary of its terrible drain, distracted by its strain on the living body of man—and even so, old jealousies, hatreds, greeds, all that which bring war, remained.

The notion of a league of nations to prohibit or to minimize war captured the fancies of the world like a new and heretofore undreamed of light. Except where politics and domestic issues eclipsed the greater ideals of the league, the nations of the world accepted it as a hope that possibly a way had been discovered to fight warfare.

This, as Mr. Irwin says, is one of the great tasks of humanity, to limit and finally eliminate the institution of war.

But the first task pointed out by Mr. Irwin is of greater importance. The power of human production must be put under control of true morals and of democracy. A democracy, though born in the blood of battle, survives and prospers by its peace-time advancements. The pages of history reveal great world powers that grew fat and important through conquest and through trade sprung up as the result of war. But the strength of the United States, and of all democracies, lies in the progress made while the people are engaged in peaceful pursuits.

The achievements of the American people during the brief period we were in the war was never before equaled by mankind. Never before had so stupendous an army been trained, never before had a nation produced so much and so quickly. The pity of it is that the same energies cannot be displayed in an hour of peace. Why does peace lack that inspiring leadership to produce which in war time is supplied by feverish patriotism?

Not only America, but the whole world, must forget about war and the production of war materials if ever we are to eliminate war. When that day comes when industry and thrift in peace time equals that of war, then humanity will have solved its task, the institution of war will have been eliminated.

REV. H. C. FUNK TALKS ON "CHARACTER BUILDING"

Rev. H. C. Funk in a sermon on "Character Building," which the preached at the Sunday morning service in the First Lutheran Church of this city, took the ground that it takes all sorts of people to make an effective church as well as to make a world.

For his text he took Paul's word's: 'Now we see through a glass darkly and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but this we know, that when He shall appear, we shall be like Him." Said he:

"If you wanted to buy a piano and could visit the factory, you would not go to the gluing department to select your instrument. I do not suppose you would even go to the finishing department. You would go to the show room and see the finished product. So when some folks criticise the members, the material out of which God builds His Church, and say, 'That's a mighty poor specimen, a bad looking job for the Almighty to turn out,' I just own up and admit that the criticism may be true, but I always tell them to wait until the Almighty is through with him, and then pass judgment on the finished product. It is true that some deacons are close and stingy and that some elders are filled with envy; but wait until God gets through with them. Yes, out of just such material Jesus Christ builds His church.

'And then some people make the mistake of assuming that they can get religion, attain a perfect character, and get through in one night. We use the catechism and a Bible training course in laying the foundation for building a Christian character, but they prefer a short course system.

"A Christian character cannot be built in a day. Faith is but the begining. "Add to your faith virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge, temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience, godliness; and to godliness, brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness, charity. For f these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledgee of our Lord, Jesus Christ,'"

"BETTER BABIES" IS BIG FEATURE OF VALLEY FAIR

Dr. Caroline P. Jackman, Glendale chairman of Child Welfare for the San Fernando Valley fair, to be held September 13 to 18, has appointed three members of her committee, as follows: Mrs. R. M. Brown, 415 North Kenwood; Mrs. E. V. Bacon, 1235 South San Fernando road, and Mrs. E. B. Moore, 1259 South Maryland avenue. These ladies and another member yet to be named, will accompany her to Burbank tomorrow to attend the general meeting to be held there in the Women's club rooms. At that time, plans for the department work will be outlined.

The chief feature of this department will be a "Better Babies contest," to be held under the direction of the Mothers' Educational Center of Southern California, of which Dr. Maude Wilde is president. Physicians and trained nurses will be provided for the proper conduct of the contest.

In this contest, children will be given as critical an examination as are the animals entered at a live-stock show. Mere beauty will not count. Only physical and mental development will be considered. The contest will be one of the features of the fair.

Following this general committee meeting, Dr. Jackman and the members of her committee will endeavor to persuade the mothers of Glendale to enter their children. Any child from one to six years of age is eligible. A lecture will be given daily at 2 p. m. and all score cards totaling 90 or over will be read in public at that time. Each mother will receive a score card, and will thus learn the rating of her child under each head.

The aim of the movement for "better babies" is to improve the physical condition of the race by informing mothers of defects in their offspring, which may be corrected by intelligent care or treatment.

Mothers desirous of taking advantage of this opportunity for free examination by experts, may secure the necessary application blanks from Dr. Jackman, or any of the members of her committee.

CABINET TO MEET

The cabinet of the Central Avenue Sunday school will meet in the social hall of the church next Wednesday evening. Plans for the work of the school for the coming year will come up for consideration and passage.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY—A horse can't travel very fast, but it never has to be towed in but once, and that's when it's dead.

MAKING DUMPING EASY

In the old high-tariff days the supporters of protection were embarrassed by evidence brought back constantly by foreign travelers that American manufacturers were in the habit of selling their goods abroad at much lower prices than in this country. A somewhat obscure paragraph in the new tariff bill indicates that the framers of this measure are planning to permit the practice to be followed in the future, and to see that it is done under government sanction. This is effected by the clause in paragraph 1514 which provides that "articles, the growth, produce and manufacture of the United States, when returned after having been exported without having been advanced in value or improved in condition," may come in without duty "if imported by or for the account of the person who exported them from the United States."

An exporter may send goods abroad and bring them back free of duty if they have been unsalable. If he sells them and they are brought back they become subject to duty. This is as clever a method as can be found for licensing the American manufacturer to sell at the highest prices he can obtain in the domestic market and disposing of his surplus at a much lower price in other parts of the world. The provision is already rousing a storm of protest in business circles. It is one of the many features of the new tariff law which seem to be charged with dynamite ready to explode with many powerful detonations in the next national campaign.

ENRICO CARUSO

When one mentions the name of Schumann-Heink, Galli-Curci or Gluck one instinctively recalls Melba, Patti, Nordica or some other of that magnificent galaxy of feminine voices; but to speak the name of Caruso recalls only Caruso. He stood alone.

Throughout the world music lovers will grieve over the announcement of his untimely death at Naples. The thought of him will bring to the minds of countless thousands some enchanted hour within a music hall or opera house when they were caught by the powerful voice of the great tenor and swept into emotions irresistible and eternal.

Perhaps for the first time in history, cold and calculating science steps into the death room and demands recognition. Even while friends are mourning Caruso's death, the fact presses itself upon them that all is not lost. Science almost boasts of its prowess, proclaiming that Caruso's voice lives, even though his mortal body passes on. In a million homes tonight the deep, rich voice of the tenor may be heard. The talking machine has achieved the miracle of preserving the human voice.

Those who have tears to shed for Germany as she labors under the heavy indemnities may brighten their thoughts by remembering that the reichstag has not voted a half billion dollars for a German navy.

The cost of food declined three-tenths of one per cent in June, but, according to the Minneapolis Journal, the cost of coal went up 10 cents on general principles.

A horse sold in Detroit the other day for $4. But, then, what can one expect in Detroit, where they make automobiles faster than raindrops fall!

Winning a place in the sun has its disadvantages for the man who has a shady past.

GRAVE AND GAY

Associate Justice Day of the United States Supreme Court is long on law, but somewhat short in stature, and the zeal with which he has pursued the legal meaning to its lair in dusty books and tomes has dried his kindly face a bit. He has a son, Rufus Day, who is probably twice as big as he is physically. The associate justice took the son up to the Supreme Court and introduced him to the other members of the tribunal. The late Chief Justice White was about the last man they ran into. The chief justice, with an exceedingly kind twinkle in his eye, looked up from the small spare figure of the father to that big form of the son. "Well," said he with a smile, "I see your son is a block off the old chip."

Two men were waiting for a train and one said: "I will ask you a question, and if I cannot answer my own question I will buy the tickets. Then you ask a question, and if you cannot answer your own you buy the tickets." The other agreed to this. "Well," the first man said, "you see those rabbit holes? How do they dig those holes without leaving any dirt behind them?" The other confessed: "I don't know. That's your question, so answer it yourself." The first man winked and replied: "They begin at the bottom and dig up." "But," said the second man, "how do they get at the bottom to begin?" "That's your question," was the first man's rejoinder. Answer it yourself." The other man bought the tickets.

"Woman is an enigma. Man can't solve her, and yet he won't give her up." De Wolf Hopper was responding—out of a very wide experience—to a toast to the fair sex. "Two beautiful young women were drinking tea and smoking cigarettes," he continued, "in a sumptuous apartment looking out on Central Park. The telephone bell rang. The hostess took up the telephone. When she put it down there were angry tears in her eyes. 'My husband,' she said, 'has just announced, if you please, that he won't be home for dinner.' 'What brutes men are!' the other woman cried. 'My husband has stuck around the house every night for nearly a week.'"

They set out to shoot rabbits—two French and an Englishman. All were eager, anxious, active. Suddenly they beheld a rabbit. The Englishman elevated his gun. "No, no, do not shoot!" cried his companions. "That is Mimi. We never shoot at Mimi." The Englishman, wondering, disgusted desisted. Another rabbit. Again the gun of the Englishman was elevated, but he was not permitted to fire. "That is the adorable Lulu," they cried. "C'est un vrai bijou! We never shoot at Lulu." When a third rabbit appeared the Englishman was tired, but his companions cried out: "Shoot, shoot! That is Alfonse! We always shoot at Alfonse."

Practical Devices for Preparing Fruit

The preparation of fruit, whether for canning or preserving, stewing in an quantity or for use on the table, always takes time and trouble. There are now so many clever devices for lightening this sort of work, however, that the required amount of time and trouble is much less than in the days when the good old kitchen knife was made to do duty for everything, from carving a huge watermelon to stoning a small cherry.

This is an age of specialties in all things, and it really seems as if each separate variety of fruit is provided with a special knife or tool for its particular use. In addition to special pieces there are a number of ingenious contrivances, both for vegetables and fruits, that have all sorts of different uses, and which lessen work in many ways; these are more important than the articles that have but a single use.

VARIETY IN KNIVES

Paring knives and slicers are to be had in so many different varieties and at so little cost that there is no excuse for not having at least one of these in the kitchen. Besides the ordinary paring knife with a pointed blade and a stout wooden handle, there is a self-adjusting knife of much the same appearance, but the cutting edge is in the shape of a lip about two inches long. It is in reality a safety blade and the gauge is regulated by the position of the hand. A more elaborate knife is made on the same principle, but has double blades, bent to form the lip, and the ends of the blades are pointed and so shaped that they will remove cores and specks and take out the eyes of pineapples.

Now that grapefruit has become a standard article of food, a special knife for preparing it is almost a necessity, and several varieties are to be had. One is a thin blade knife with rounded point, not unlike a palet-knife in appearance except that the end is curved, and it is intended especially for removing perfectly shaped sections of fruit intended for salad or fruit cocktail. Another variety has a thicker blade, also curved, with a sharp-pointed end. One side of the blade is like a tiny saw and is intended especially for cutting through the thick pulp when the grapefruit is to be eaten from the skin. This knife has a white bone handle and a shining steel blade.

An article that bears not the smallest resemblance, except in the handle, to anything in the shape of a knife, is an orange peeler, consisting of two little pieces of steel, semicircular in shape and parallel to one another, with possibly one-sixteenth of an inch between. Attached to a substantial bone handle, they will remove the peel from an orange much quicker and more neatly than will an ordinary knife.

FOR LEMONS AND LIMES

Lemon squeezers are, of course, to be had in every imaginable variety, but there is an ornamental kind made of china, that is something of t novelty. The regular cone-shaped squeezer fits over a receptacle that is like a very shallow tea-cup with a lip for pouring out. When the lemons are squeezed, the top is removed and the little cup can be placed on the table and a few drops of the juice put into each cup, instead of the ordinary slice of lemon.

Limes are being used more and more, some people preferring them to lemons, and a new lime squeezer is an unusual looking device with handles like a pair of scissors. In place of the scissors' blades, there are little, spoon-shaped holders, in each of which is a small spike for holding the lime firmly in place. Something of this sort is quite a necessity if limes are often used. Limes are so much smaller than lemons that an ordinary lemon squeezer is practically useless, and to attempt to squeeze them with your fingers is most unsatisfactory.

STONERS AND PITTERS

Not the least important of these devices for fruit are stoners and pitters and all articles that simplify labor. The housewife can take her special implement, give a punch and a twist, and the seed comes out quickly and easily. A small contrivance that can be used for stoning cherries and other small fruits, for seeding raisins and grapes, and even for hulling strawberries, is a spring clip about three and one-half inches long, with sharp-pointed, bowl-shaped ends that dig into the fruit and close over the seed without disturbing the pulp or juice.

Pineapple snips are shaped like scissors, with a scoop-like piece on the other that shuts down and cuts the eye cleanly out.

Even the peach has its special implement, a spoon-shaped cutter with two little sharp prongs in the center that catch in the rough surface of the stone and remove it after the cutter has separated it from the pulp.

The useful apple corer, a wheel-shaped affair that cores the apple and at the same time cuts it into eight sections, has been made even more useful by the addition of a small circular cutting-board of white wood, just large enough to accommodate a single, large apple.

For serving grapes, there is a quaint novelty in the shape of stork scissors, copied after the design of the familiar embroidery scissors, but just a little larger. The stork's bill is much broader and heavier, thus making a clean cut through the always tough stems of the grapes.

None of these devices is expensive and many of them are ornamental, as well as useful. This is particularly true of the grape scissors. Everyone knows how difficult it is to separate a large bunch of grapes with the fingers. These stork scissors passed with a dish of grapes, gives it a very artistic look, and are of real, practical use.

LESTER CUENO RETURNS

Two or three years ago Lester Cuneo was among the few really popular players of the male persuasion on the screen. For some reason he droped from the silver sheet and was all but forgotten by his fan admirers. Now he soon will be in the tlight again as the star of Doubleday Productions. He is at present arranging to produce "Pat O'Paradise," a story well known to magazine readers. In the picture Cuneo will have many opportunities to display his talents as an athlete. His first Doubleday picture, "Blue Blazes," is also a Western, and soon will be on its way to the silver sheet. Cuneo will make eight two-reelers under his Doubleday contract.

NEILAN'S NEW FILM

Marshall Neilan, producer of "Bob Hampton of Placer," believes he has overcome one of the most common complaints against feature production on the part of the theater-going public. He further believes that "Bits of Life," a novelty in films, just finished by him, will satisfy any picture patron, this because of its peculiar conception. "Bits of Life" consists of four short stories. The final episode offers a comedy situation as a climax. Each story has a different cast. Neilan is of the opinion that picture patrons are tired of the average six, seven or eight reel pictures. He believes they now want variety and spice and he has produced both in "Bits of Life."

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which relieves bladder trouble.

Uncle Walt's Story

DISTORTED NAMES

"I HAD a letter from Marie Dusenberry this morning," announced Mrs. Jamesworthy, "and she hints that she would like to come and stay with us a while."

"Let her keep on hinting until her elbow is out of joint," said Jamesworthy. "So long as I am master of this house, and my word is law, no American woman who calls herself Marie is going to be welcome at our groaning board. There are some affectations, Mrs. Jamesworthy, which give me a horizontal pain in my shoulderblade, and the worst of them is this thing of givng foreign spelling and pronunciation to our home grown names. There isn't a finer or statelier name in the city directory than Mary. The most distinguished woman this world ever saw had that name, and it was good enough for her.

"Any woman who tries to rearrange such a name as that has something wrong with her intellect, and I'd be afraid to have her under my roof. At any moment she might become a gibbering maniac.

"When I was young all the good old fashioned names were in evidence everywhere. The woods were full of Elizabeths and Dorcases and Matildas. The women who had such names were proud of them, and never monkeyed with them. Had they done so, they'd have been cast into outer darkness by polite society. Just today I was glancing over the newspaper and saw some mention of a woman who calls herself Elyzabeth. Now, I wonder what that 'y' is doing there. Sane people don't spell Elizabeth with a 'y,' and in the grand old days the people wouldn't have stood for such an innovation. But in these modern times all the institutions of our fathers and mothers are being overturned, and if a girl is so fortunate as to receive a stately name at her christening, she devotes the best years of her life to overhauling it, so it will look like something escaped from a feeble-minded institution.

"There is no law to prevent women from maltreating their names, so we can't rebuke them by process of warrant, but we can at least set our faces against the fool custom and close our doors to the guilty parties. I am a man of hospitable instincts, and would welcome to my abode the veriest beggar or social outcast, but no Marie, Kathryn or Mae will ever enter this house while I have strength to resist. When I see them coming I'll sell my life as dearly as possible, Mrs. Jamesworthy.

"My sainted mother was the smoothest woman I ever knew. Taking her by and large, pro and con, she stacked up about as high as anyone. She never tried to cut a swath in social circles, for she had a profound contempt for everything that was trifling or superficial and she had a reverence for old ways and customs.

"Her front name was Isabella, and she wore it, without any frills or furbelows, as long as she lived. She never sent that name to the upholsterer or taxidermist to have it made over. She realized that famous queens and other great women wore that name, and she was proud of it. You might have argued her into haying her hair shingled or her front teeth pulled out, but if you had suggested rearranging her name she'd have thought your proper place was the booby hatch. Her name was a treasured possession, an heirloom more precious than the family jewels.

"The name Isabella lends itself to mutilation and transposition more than any other. Modern women, blessed with that magnificent name, can't rest until they have telescoped it, so we have Isabels and Isbells and Ysobels and half a dozen other variants, each being more idiotic than the others. Whenever I think of the way my mother hung on to Isabella I feel a new respect and admiration for that grand old woman, and I wish she were here today, to make the round of the Chautauquas, and point out to young women their duties and privileges."

Perverse.

"Yes, I've quit handling talking parrots."

"Why?"

"They never would talk when I was trying to make a sale."

Ouch!

'LIGHTING THE LIGHT' REV. EDMONDS' SERMON TOPIC

Under the general text "Lighting the Light,' Rev. W. E. Edmonds on Sunday morning preached the first of three sermons he plans to deliver on the aims and accomplishments of the Presbyterian church, as an organization.

For his text he selected the tenth verse of the nineteenth chapter of the gospel of Luke: "For the Son of Man is come to seek and to save that which was lost.' He said:

"The Presbyterian church, in its length, breadth and scope, is one of the largest, most important, business concerns in the world. It knows where it is going. It has a great financial basis in a plant valued at $325,000,000. It has lands upon which are churches, manses, hospitals, dispensaries, schools and many other institutions of service. The sun never sets upon them.

There must be an organized force that operates all the numberless factors that go into our endowment. Boards which do these things are a large edition of committees. Men who compose these boards are great men who stand at the head of millions and give their time to look after these church works.

"No phase of our work is an end in itself. The one great outstanding word is 'evangelism.' The first and supreme task of the church is to make disciples. What it needs is more passionate preaching, more diligent preaching, and not for the sake of mere noise.

"In the Far East and the Near East there are eight hundred millions who are wholly without the light. But one light has lighted another. Dr. Silas Johnson, who went out from us, has, in West Africa, a mighty church, which now carries on, through its own members, a great circle of missionary activity. When the Word has a chance, it becomes, not only the light, but the living seed."

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Sage Tea and Sulphur Turns Gray, Faded Hair Dark and Glossy

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and luster to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

The Spirit of the American Doughboy

Designed by E. M. Viquesney of Americus, Ga., which has been selected from 147 suggestions submitted to the National Committee on Memorials as the Legion's tribute to the memory of the victims of the 1919 Armistice Day parade at Centralia, Wash. Fifty-two veterans posed for the statue, and a jury of ex-service men passed on its detail.

ERNEST M. VIQUESNEY SCULPTOR

Albert G. Wheelon and Lawrence M. Duryee, ex-service men, are sole agents for Los Angeles and vicinity for "THE SPIRIT OF THE AMERICAN DOUGHBOY" and will donate 5 per cent to the sick fund of Post 127 of the American Legion of Glendale.

The 9-inch bronze statue will be sold for $6.00, and makes a magnificent ornament for the living room or business office. The famous world-renowned hero, Sergt. Alvin C. York, the man who captured 132 Germans single handed, writes as follows concerning this beautiful statue:

"I believe that the placing of these statues in every home and business house in this country will help, more than any other thing, to bring home to the American people what the doughboy has really done for them. I endorse it most highly and compliment you strongly on the patience and time you have given in working out so correct a figure to the smallest details. My sincerest best wishes to you for unbounded success in making this statue the most widely known thing of the kind in the entire world."

This is your chance to secure a work of art and, at the same time, to assist the men who fought your battles and now need your help.
